

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF TEXAS
GALVESTON DIVISION

TOMMY COOPER, #1125567	§
V.	§	CIVIL ACTION NO. G-05-132
DOUG DRETKE, DIRECTOR,	§
TEXAS DEPARTMENT OF CRIMINAL	§
JUSTICE, INSTITUTIONAL DIVISION.	§

REPORT AND RECOMMENDATION

Before the Court is the application of Tommy L. Cooper for the issuance of a writ of habeas corpus. Cooper challenges disciplinary case No. 20050086911, in which he was found guilty of testing positive for methamphetamine in a random drug test at the Terrell unit. Punishment consisted of a loss of thirty days commissary and recreation privileges; fifteen days solitary confinement; a reduction in time-earning class status from S-3 to L-1; and, a loss of 90 days good time. Having reviewed Cooper's Petition and a complete copy of the disciplinary record, provided through the office of Attorney General for the State of Texas via a Martinez report, (and incorporated by reference herein), this Court now makes the following recommendation to the District Judge.

State prisoners seeking federal court review of a conviction pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §2254 must assert a violation of a federal constitutional right. Lawrence v. Lensing, 42 F.3d 255, 258 (5th Cir. 1994); Gray v. Lynn, 6 F.3d 265, 268 (5th Cir. 1993). In this case, Petitioner alleges that his rights to due process were violated because there was insufficient evidence to support a finding of guilt; the test results were indeterminate because of contamination due to improper testing procedures; the disciplinary committee failed to consider the possibility that other medications Petitioner was taking caused a false positive test result; and, no physical evidence was produced to support the charge.

The TDCJ Investigation Work Sheet states that Petitioner's urine tested positive in two successive tests. Though Petitioner asserts that Dr. Owusa stated that some of Petitioner's medication may have caused a false positive result, there is no indication of such. Instead, the response to Petitioner's grievances and the Offense Report state that the medical staff indicated that Petitioner was taking no prescription medication that would cause a false positive.

A temporary loss of commissary and recreation privileges and a brief stint in solitary confinement do not pose an atypical or significant hardship beyond the ordinary incidents of prison life; rather, they merely constitute a minimal and temporary change in conditions of confinement and do not, therefore, implicate the protections afforded by the Due Process Clause. See Madison v. Parker, 104 F.3d 765, 767-68 (5th Cir. 1997). A claim for loss of time-earning class status also fails to qualify for federal habeas relief, as the subsequent possible loss of "the mere opportunity to earn good-time credits" does not constitute a constitutionally cognizable liberty interest sufficient to "trigger the protection of the Due Process Clause. Luken v. Scott, 71 F.3d 192, 193 (1995), cert. denied, 517 U.S. 1196 (1996). The possibility that the reduction in Petitioner's time-earning class status would affect his ultimate release date from prison "is simply too attenuated to invoke the procedural guarantees of the Due Process Clause." Id. (quoting Sandin v. Conner, 515 U.S. 472 (1995)). "These are penalties which do not represent the type of atypical, significant deprivation in which a state might create a liberty interest." Madison, 104 F.3d at 767-68.

A loss of good time days, however, which may be used to determine a prisoner's eligibility for early release from prison, does constitute a potential challenge to the fact and duration of confinement and is properly considered a habeas corpus attack. See TEX.CODE. CRIM.P.ANN.art. 42.18 §8 (Vernon 1996); Cook v. Texas Dept. of Criminal Justice Transitional Planning Dept. 37 F.3d 166, 168 (5th Cir. 1994). In this case, however, a review of Petitioner's disciplinary records reveals that all due process requirements were completely met.

It is a well-settled principle of law that prison disciplinary proceedings do not form part of a criminal prosecution and, therefore, "the full panoply of rights due a defendant in such proceedings" does not apply. Wolff v. McDonnell, 418 U.S. 539, 564-65 (1974). In Wolff, the Supreme Court set out the minimum standards for due process in disciplinary cases which result in the loss of good-time credits. They include: (1) advanced written notice of the disciplinary charges; (2) an opportunity to call witnesses and present documentary evidence when the presentation is not unduly hazardous to institutional safety and correctional goals; and, (3) a written statement by the fact finder of the evidence relied upon and the reason for the disciplinary action. Id., at 563-567. When reviewing a prison disciplinary decision, "the standard to be applied is whether or not actions of the disciplinary committee were arbitrary and capricious or an abuse of discretion." Smith v. Rabalais, 659 F.2d 539, 543 (5th Cir. 1981), cert. denied, 455 U.S. 992 (1982)(citing Thomas v. Estelle, 603 F.2d 488, 490 (5th Cir. 1979)). "The findings of a prison disciplinary hearing will not be disturbed unless they are arbitrary and capricious." Banuelos v. McFarland, 41 F.3d 232, 234 (5th Cir. 1995). "[T]he requirements of due process are satisfied if some evidence supports the decision of the prison disciplinary board to revoke good time credits." Superintendent v. Hill, 472 U.S. 445, 455 (1985). As noted by the Supreme Court, ascertaining whether this standard is satisfied does not require examination of the entire record, independent assessment of the credibility of witnesses, or weighing of the evidence. Instead, the relevant question is whether there is any evidence in the record that could support the conclusion reached by the disciplinary board. In other words, if there are "some facts" or "any evidence at all" that support the action taken by prison officials, the decision must be upheld on federal habeas review. See Banuelos, 41 F.3d at 234; Gibbs v. King, 779 F.2d 1040, 1044 (5th Cir. 1986). As noted by the Fifth Circuit in Reeves v. Pettcox, 19 F.3d 1060, 1062, n.1 (1994), the court may act only where arbitrary or capricious action is shown. This means that prison disciplinary proceedings will be overturned only where there is no evidence, whatsoever, to support the decision of the prison officials. A de novo factual review is not required. Smith, 659 F.2d at 545; Stewart v. Thigpen, 730 F.2d 1002, 1005-06 (5th Cir. 1984).

Disciplinary records reflect that Petitioner received advanced written notice of the charges against him and was represented by counsel substitute. The disciplinary hearing officer based his finding of guilt on the charging officer's written report and the test results. Petitioner received a written disposition of the case citing the reasons for the finding of guilt.

Due process was satisfied in that the findings made in the disciplinary hearing were supported by more than "some evidence." Hill, 472 U.S. at 457. The Supreme Court has recognized that "[t]he Federal Constitution does not require evidence that logically precludes any conclusion but the one reached by the disciplinary board." Id. In this instance, the conclusion of the disciplinary committee is supported by the evidence.

Official TDCJ-ID records are entitled to a presumption of regularity and must be accorded great evidentiary weight. See Webster v. Estelle, 505 F.2d 926, 929-30 (5th Cir. 1974), cert. denied, 421 U.S. 918 (1975); Hobbs v. Blackburn, 752 F.2d 1079, 1081 (5th Cir. 1985); Bonrillain v. Blackburn, 780 F.2d 1248, 1250 (5th Cir. 1986). 28 U.S.C. §2254(d) mandates that the findings made by the state court system shall be "presumed to be correct," unless the habeas court concludes that the relevant state court determination is not "fairly supported by the record." Sumner v. Mata, 449 U.S. 539, 550 (1981). The findings may be found through an evidentiary hearing, or may be based on a "written finding, written opinion, or other reliable and adequate written indicia," Buxton v. Lynaugh, 879 F.2d 140 (5th Cir. 1989), cert. denied, 497 U.S. 1032 (1990), where, as in the instant case, the habeas applicant and the State or its agent are parties to the proceeding.

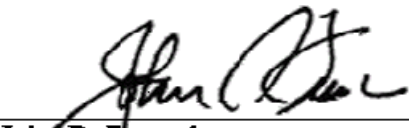

Presuming the factual correctness of the record, this Court is of the opinion that the disciplinary proceeding made the basis of this suit afforded Petitioner the due process to which he was entitled, consistent with the requirements of due process in the prison context. See Wolf, 418 U.S. at 563-66; Banuelos, 41 F.3d at 234. The finding of guilt is supported by more than some evidence in the record; thus, the Court must uphold the administrative decision.

Accordingly, for all the aforementioned reasons, it is the RECOMMENDATION of this Court that the application for writ of habeas corpus of Tommy Cooper be DENIED and this case be DISMISSED, with prejudice.

The Clerk shall send a copy of this Report and Recommendation to the Petitioner by the means in place for transmission of same. The Petitioner shall have until May 27, 2005, in which to have written objections physically on file in the Office of the Clerk. The objections shall be mailed to the Clerk's Office in Galveston, Texas 7753 at P.O. Drawer 2300. Any Objections filed shall be contained in a written document specifically entitled "Objections to the Report and Recommendation of the Magistrate Judge", which will then be forwarded to the District Judge for consideration. Failure to file written objections within the prescribed time shall bar an aggrieved party from attacking on appeal the proposed factual findings and legal conclusions accepted by the District Judge, except upon grounds of plain error.

DONE at Galveston, Texas, this 11th day of May, 2005.
